

Tao Technology of Healing

Tao Calligraphy for Healing

A Ground-breaking Approach That Accelerates the Natural Evolution of Body-Mind and Being

Presented by Cheryl A. Malakoff, Ph.D.

Wellness Through Awareness

www.drcherylmalakoff.com

December 1, 2024

Copyright © 2024 Cheryl A. Malakoff

First and foremost, with deep reverence, I wish to acknowledge Dr. and Master Zhi Gang Sha without whose devotion to bringing greater healing technologies to humanity, none of us would be here today. We hold with you the dawning of a new age for humanity. Thank you for allowing us the privilege of going on this journey with you.

Tao Technology for healing is a ground-breaking approach that accelerates the natural evolution of Body-Mind and Being by activating root level abilities that support our making fundamental life-level changes.

This breakthrough system of human development accelerates natural healing and health restoration by activating and strengthening core-level abilities that are inherent in the human makeup—but are usually dormant or only partially developed—thus enabling you to embody the life qualities needed to realize your greatest possibilities.

Within you are countless abilities. Some are readily available, while many others are not. Those individuals who realize their visions—even against all odds, embody abilities that align their actions with clarified intentions—thus, more readily actualizing their inherent potential. It is the manifestation of these abilities that we find most attractive and admirable in those who lead successful and significant lives.

The abilities referred to here are not learned by intellectual study. They are an intrinsic part of the human-spiritual design that can be accessed and developed through organic learning—the direct conveyance of awareness, utilizing the art and science of Tao Technology.

These direct conveyances can be thought of as circuits of consciousness that exist as a part of the human energetic system. By working at a level more subtle than the mind—bypassing our preconceived thoughts, biases and mental conditioning—Tao Technology through Tao Calligraphy can enable profound, lifelong changes by increasing awareness—thus transforming unconscious sabotaging habits into more conscious, intentional life enhancing patterns.

(Show Tao Calligraphy—Da Ai)

Tao Calligraphy, like this one—Da Ai-Greatest Love, can be likened to a vibrational field that enlivens the circuits of consciousness that exist as a part of the human energetic blueprint. By activating these circuits via specific Tao Calligraphies, you can awaken dormant abilities that transform underlying patterns in your field of consciousness.

This is why personal transformation is the greatest service to yourself and the world. Your ultimate purpose is to realize your highest life calling—to become ever-more conscious of your unlimited power to create the life you were meant to live, and to serve others with your unique gifts.

As the vibrational level of your life energy radiates at higher and more refined frequencies, your unique ‘energy field’ becomes a powerful positive contributory presence. In the end, it is not how much you have accomplished, accumulated or achieved, but rather, how many others have benefited through your contributions that ultimately determines the final measure of your life.

Let’s explore now how harnessing the field of consciousness is the leading edge of complete, enduring healing—and the foundational principle of Tao Technology.

The most formative and primary organizing force in the Universe is Consciousness. It is foundational to all life as the one and only reality, and is the cause and substance of life itself.

At the core of each human being is a spiritual blueprint-template which when accessed and enlivened activates our essential self. Healing is the process of converting this Divine design into living, human function, and is the means that enables you to fully realize your true nature.

As David Bohm, the Nobel Prize physicist stated: “There is no causality in the visible world, the visible world is a world of effects. All power resides in consciousness itself.”

New clinical findings predict that the underlying formative influences of invisible energy fields, in managing health, will be the foundational principle in medicine of the future—for prevention and treatment.

Science has demonstrated that we are not limited by our genetic inheritance, but have an infinitively flexible state of Intelligent Consciousness capable of catalyzing unlimited desired outcomes. In other words, our sought-after future is not in front of us, but rather abides within us.

Tao Technology is a groundbreaking treatment model that is based upon two essential principles: first, that everything is composed of conscious intelligence, energy and matter that resonates at a specific vibrational frequency. And second, by introducing living systems to higher-order energy that carries conscious information, precise effects may be achieved by matching specific frequencies as vibrational messages that can inform, direct and express communication instructions to targeted systems.

This enables the acceleration of human evolution by telescoping the future into the present. Our life experiences are the out picturing of our inner core organization. We don't see the world as it is, we only see it as we are.

The mere passage of time does not insure growth, development or transformation. For each of us, the body is a teacher, the symptoms are the lessons. The primary underlying reason that conditions exist and persist is so that we embrace the opportunity to learn the life-level lesson of restoring balance and harmony—with the Laws of Nature—that are associated with them.

In more traditional models, where only the symptom management level is addressed, there may not be the opportunity for real understanding to be embraced. Generally speaking, if the underlying patterns of the progenitor condition are not brought into functional awareness, there is the possibility of other consequences emerging—resulting in a reoccurrence of the original condition. This is pure physics: For every action, there is an equal and opposite reaction.

Today's leading edge scientists studying the impact of subtle energies assert that modern medicine lags behind quantum physics in accepting that the entire universe is one indivisible, dynamic whole, and that energy and matter are undeniably entangled—making it impossible to consider soul, mind and body independently. Albert Einstein's special relativity theory, $E=mc^2$, states that energy and matter are unified and interchangeable—neither can be created nor destroyed, but rather only transformed, further supporting this idea.

Currently, the leading-edge investigation of human development comes out of the “epiphenomenon of matter”—the arena of consciousness as the most seminal, formative and primary contribution to actualizing human potential at every level.

Tao Technology addresses this level of causation by transforming the core underlying energy patterns of an individual's limitations where the source of the conditions originated. Tao Technology through information transmissions, energy conveyances and purification as the ‘field-of-healing’, dissolves the obstacles at the formative levels resulting in the transformation of previously obstructed areas of imprinted unconscious conditioning. Tao Technology pioneers ‘consciousness over mind and matter’ as a ground-breaking healing model.

The ability to harness and direct this “field of healing” model has extremely important implications for both patients and practitioners, and exemplifies how Tao

Technology is making a significant contribution, expanding the frontiers of energy healing. The implications are far reaching for the future of healthcare in every category.

The ability to act as a significant catalyst for another individual's true transformation, is based upon the practitioner's level of consciousness. In other words, the single factor that translates any healing treatment into its potential is the practitioner's embodiment of the underlying qualities necessary to directly convey the intention of the model. We can only convey to others that which we embody ourselves.

As doctors and healers—that which we embody has a tremendous impact and influence on clinical outcomes, as the next two examples demonstrate.

For example, in one of David Hawkins', M.D., PhD. Annual Lecture at the University of California, San Francisco, School of Medicine, he states:

“The amount of side effects that a doctor's patients have depends on the consciousness of the doctor. It doesn't depend on the medicine at all. I know doctors who never have side effects from anything. They prescribe tons of medicines. I've treated something like 25,000 patients, and side effects, forget it. They don't exist. I know of clinicians whose patients have frequent, serious side effects. They can't even seem to give a patient aspirin that the patient doesn't get gastric hemorrhaging. The clinician carries that negative energy field with him and attracts it to him, and then he and the patient join together in a negative belief system and proceed to create it in the patient's physiology.”

A second example comes from Dr. John Diamond M.D. who conducted an experiment utilizing applied kinesiology, organic learning and osmotic conveyance in a group setting. Diamond tested two orchestra conductors relative to their Will To Live. One tested strong—embodying a strong will to live and conversely the other tested weak on this attribute. Diamond then filled the auditorium and had each conductor execute the same piece of music with the same orchestra. After each piece, Dr. Diamond and his associates tested the audience. As you might expect, the audience was weakened by the music executed by the weak 'Will To Live' conductor and the audience was strengthened by the conductor with the strong Will To Live.

The experimental implications, as demonstrated in these examples, are the critical challenge of our age: How to empower future practitioners in such a way that their clinical outcomes create greater healing results?

This quest is answered through the power and effectiveness of Tao Technology, as special awareness catalysts—that act as access codes to increase awareness—accelerating significant transformation.

The ability to heal oneself or others is based upon how aligned you are with your potential. As you increase your ability to contain and express your life-force energy, you osmotically have a more transformative influence and healing presence on others.

As you become more aware of the Source of your being, your acceptance as a vehicle for the expression of Source enables you to have a more healing influence on others through your presence.

In this new era of clinical application, the role of energy medicine stretches the boundaries of regeneration and rejuvenation possibilities through harnessing the ability to use the invisible fields of energy to create previously seemingly impossible results.

It is through the efficacy of Tao Technology to catalyze the actualization of these inherent Divine-design possibilities into actual embodied abilities, that there is greater certainty to achieve these goals.

Similarly, these implications are as equally significant for all patients and how Tao Technology and Tao Calligraphy is able to address the root causes of why the underlying conditions were originally created.

Life's challenges such as physical pain, emotional distress, mental anguish and spiritual longing are unresolved aspects of the soul, mind and body. The primary reason that any area remains as distress in life is to awaken the dormant and underdeveloped aspects of oneself so they can integrate into greater wholeness.

According to Stanford University Medical School, 95% of all physical and emotional conditions are linked to stress. Stress is defined by any out-of-balance condition that results in a negative impact relative to the quality of life.

The history of humanity is on a continuum of chaotic, ambiguous and a challenging chronology of stress, such as—accidents, natural disasters, injury, war, illness and so much more. Everyone's personal timeline is stamped with many stressful events that can be encoded into our psychobiology.

It is not if stressful events have happened, but rather, how many and to what extent these life events have shaped every part of your body—physically, mentally, emotionally and more. These traumatic memories are imbedded information imprints that converts stress induced thoughts and emotions into visible effects in our body.

These impactful life experiences are referred to as negative stress factors. Each of us, given our unique constitution and environmental conditions, handles the amount of negative stress load differently.

One of the most important areas in research today, is how to convert traumatic stress memory information into regenerative positive messenger information that reverse life challenging patterns on all levels.

Herein lies the most significant contribution of Tao Technology, a system that works on the limitations and conditions that obstruct the energetic flow in our field of consciousness. In essence, it is a system of healing that operates to ameliorate the deep roots and hidden seeds of persistent conditions that are created at the soul, mind, body level—which few approaches reliably and effectively access.

On a very personal note:

For decades, I've observed the futility of ordinary life—often experienced as a 'roller coaster' with seemingly endless repetitions of ups and downs with no guarantees of good health or lasting happiness. No matter how much is accomplished or acquired, there never appears to be a permanent resolution to life's endless problems-to-be-solved—where hopes are hijacked and important life goals thwarted. It seemed as though no matter how many attempts to move through these persistent limitations, it was akin to digging out obstinate weeds—they seem to be gone for a while, but because their roots run deep and the seeds remain, they invariably reappear. After exhausting available resources, there is resignation to this predicament as simply part of the 'human condition'. The price of having to accept the unacceptable is very high—it diminishes the freedom to choose and the power to direct life towards desired outcomes.

The formation of all imbalanced conditions is imbedded in the ignorance of our soul nature. This lack of understanding and awareness of our essential self leaves us in a chronic, debilitating state of doubt, restlessness, and an endless seeking that often leads to misguided actions in life.

This results in the ignorance of:

- Your unlimited inherent power.
- Your ability to heal yourself and others.

- Your trusting your intuition and higher wisdom as the primary source of guidance.
- Your unlimited potential.
- Your true spiritual nature.
- Your interconnectedness with everyone and everything.
- And, so much more!

In reality, we are actualizing only a fraction of the potential we have been endowed to experience and express as our Source-design inheritance.

The ability to bring up from under the condition of ignorance into our fullest actualization is the greatest value and effectiveness of Tao Technology—that accelerates the natural evolution enabling us to architect a future that is different from the past.

Unlike other approaches to personal growth which either provides the mind with new information, or gradually peels away and releases the many layers of self-experiences that cover your true essence, Tao Technology directly and spontaneously awakens the core emotional-spiritual abilities that are part of the most fundamental level of the human design. By setting-in-motion your own inner intelligence—which is as individual as your fingerprint—you are able to more fully and freely actualize your highest unique potential.

Tao Technology:

- Telescopes your future into your present by eliminating the laborious trial and error process of the ordinary learning curve, and initiates an acceleration of the natural evolutionary aspect on all levels, rendering effort-based change obsolete.
- It is the means of direct and permanently enduring transformation through organic learning that deepens over time.
- Is a process of transformation—bringing into being, the highest possible form of human expression by activating your unlimited potential.
- Heightens your sense of feeling awareness, expanding a greater range of positive life-enhancing choices.

In my heart-of-hearts, I knew there had to be a better way.

In 2010 I read Master Sha's book— Soul Mind Body Science System: Grand Unification Theory and Practice for Healing, Rejuvenation, Longevity, and Immortality.

I recognized immediately the power and potential of the Tao Technology healing model. Right there and then, I made a life-long promise to myself, that I was going to go anywhere, do anything, make any investment necessary to learn this Tao Technology model of healing. It was the means, method and model I had been seeking for decades—the ability to ignite the intrinsic healing power of the body to heal itself.

As a clinician, the ability to know what needs to be done—and not having the means to do it is a heartbreak. The ability to know what needs to be done—and having the means to do it is the greatest satisfaction of being a therapist.

With Tao Technology, as a doctor, I have the means, method and model to consistently and confidently have what I need to intercede and help remediate the presenting condition.

To this end, I believe...Each person is like a beautiful mosaic, created by a pattern of many unique pieces. It is only by stepping back that there is a clear vision of how each part complements and defines the whole picture.

It is the alchemy of passion, accountability and directed will-power to live both a successful and significant life that ultimately defines your unique masterpiece. For most of us, our masterpiece is not yet complete. It remains a work in progress.

You are your greatest asset and by tapping into and unlocking your innate power, you are a gift to the world.

Let us conclude with Dr. and Master Sha's signature message that he shares with all humanity;

“I have the power to heal myself.
You have the power to heal yourself.
Together we had the power to heal the world.”

To this end—I wish you peace and happiness.

Thank you.